EPA is committed to working closely with response agencies and state and local officials to ensure the safety of citizens, respond to concerns and to evaluate impact to water contaminated by the Gold King Mine Release. EPA is sharing information as quickly as possible with the public as experts work to evaluate any effects the spill may have on drinking water, public health, agriculture, fish and wildlife.

Subject: Gold King Mine Toxic water Release

Let me introduce myself:

I am Oland Robinson and I represent Catastrophe Response Unit (CRU). I direct our environmental claims division. The Gold King Mine spill of toxic water and chemicals will create potentially hundreds of thousands of claims from drinking water to major health issues. My division is experienced in handling these types of events. I personally have worked many years for FEMA Region 8 and have many contacts there for reference.

CRU can establish an 800 Call center to handle calls and questions in response to this disaster. I can establish this call center in less than 24 hours. In addition, CRU can establish claims centers along the impacted area to handle the public relations, claims, and community outcry over this event. I have attached a brochure for your review and can be in Denver on Monday or Tuesday to meet with your EPA Response Team and discuss a coordinated response.

I will be calling on Monday to establish contact with your key people.

Thank you,

Oland Robinson, Jr.
